Autumn Statement and Local Government

Local government already faces wage, fuel and other price pressures in delivering services. The Statement promises increases in spending across health, education and social care as well as continuing big ticket infrastructure projects.

It was acknowledged that social care is critical, particularly in its role in reducing pressures on the NHS. Although £1bn in new funding to support social care for 2023-24 has been promised, more than half of the funding to support social care packages will come from 'further flexibility for local authorities on council tax and from delaying the rollout of adult social care charging reform to October 2025.

The Autumn Statement promised an acceleration of infrastructure investment across the board to support both growth and energy efficiency with an emphasis on road, rail, broadband and 5G – with no cuts to capital budgets in the next two years and maintaining funding for three years in cash terms.

The Autumn Statement reiterated a commitment to the Levelling Up and devolution approach with an announcement of a bidding round two focused on £1.7bn funding for priority local infrastructure projects.

Possible elected Leader for Norfolk

In his recent Autumn Statement, the Chancellor announced that the Government has agreed a devolution deal that will bring an elected mayor to Suffolk, and that he hoped to be able to announce further deals with Cornwall, Norfolk and an area in the North East, subject to local agreement. Talks are ongoing between Norfolk County Council and central Government exploring devolving further budgets and powers to Norfolk with an elected Leader of Norfolk County Council and there will be consultation with electors.

COVID-19 Trusted sources of information

The most recent verified data on cases in the UK and Norfolk is available from Public Health England and Norfolk Insights.

Everyone has a key role in promoting www.nhs.uk/coronavirus and www.gov.uk/coronavirus as trusted sources of information to the public. It is important to ensure people go to the right sources of information and keep up to date with how to look after themselves.

Keep up to date: We have a dedicated webpage for coronavirus updates in Norfolk and impact on Norfolk County Council services.

Service updates: The most up to date information on council services can be found at Norfolk County Council services disruptions.

Public Health - Avian flu update

Please share this information with anybody you know that keeps poultry and encourage them to register the Animal and Plant Health Agency (APHA) poultry register.

Further cases of highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) H5N1 have been confirmed in Norfolk. The latest Norfolk outbreaks were confirmed on 11 November. Details here.

Government information regarding the latest situation on Avian Influenza, and the Prevention Zone requirements, can be found here.

Mandatory housing measures for all poultry and captive birds were introduced to all areas of England from 7 November, following a decision by the United Kingdom's Chief Veterinary Officer. The order extends the mandatory housing measures already in force in Norfolk to the whole of England following an increase in the national risk of bird flu in wild birds to very high. Further information here.

If you have 50 or more birds, you are legally required to register but you can choose to register voluntarily if you have less than that. By doing so you will be kept informed on the latest bird flu information so you can take action to reduce the risk to your birds, which in turn reduces the risk to all UK poultry. It's quick and easy to register here.

Advice for the public

The UK Health Security Agency says that avian influenza is primarily a disease of birds and the risk to the general public's health is very low. The Food Standards Agency says that avian influenza poses a very low food safety risk, and that properly cooked poultry and poultry products, such as eggs, are safe to eat.

- The public are advised to keep to designated footpaths, not to feed wild birds, and keep dogs on leads. Don't touch sick or dead birds, their feathers, or their droppings. If you see a dead bird, please report it to Defra's helpline on 03459 335577. Sick birds should be reported to the RSPCA (0300 1234 999) who may be able to help.

The government has worked with a range of Internet Service Providers and Mobile Network Operators to deliver low-cost broadband and phone service packages, called social tariffs, for those on low incomes. Social tariffs are available for people claiming Universal Credit, Pension Credit and some other benefits, with some providers offering deals from £15 a month. More details here.

- The Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport is encouraging councils to raise awareness of these products and has produced a stakeholder toolkit which includes social media materials, posters and leaflets to help councils share this information across their communications channels.
- The government's Help for Households campaign homepage brings together over 40 support schemes that the public may be able to access depending on eligibility. There are also online tools for the public to check the support they might be eligible for and how to access it.

Business - Business rates revaluation 2023

The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) has updated the rateable values of all business, and other non-domestic, property in England and Wales.

The information gives the future rateable values for non-domestic properties in England that will take effect from 1 April 2023.

You can check the factual information used for your valuation and tell the VOA if anything is wrong. The rateable value for your business property is not what you pay in business rates or rent. Your local council uses the rateable value to calculate your business rates bill.

Charitable relief means that registered charities will only pay 20% of their business rates bill. Many charities will not pay any business rates at all.

Thousands of children and young people across Norfolk are expected to take part in a new survey to help local services improve their communications work.

The survey, being run by the Children and Young People Strategic Alliance and available on the Norfolk County Council website, aims to help leaders in local public services gain a better understanding of how children and young people in Norfolk want to be involved in decision-making about issues that are important to them.

- The survey has been created in partnership with groups of young people in Norfolk, including the DRAGONS (Disability Real Action Group of Norfolk) and Youth Advisory Boards.
- The results of the survey will be used by a wide range of organisations to help develop ways to engage children and young people and gather their views on a wide range of topics over the coming years.

- The survey can be completed in around 10 minutes. Resources including guidance and a slide deck have been created to help adults support young people to complete the survey. An easy read version is also available for younger children and those with additional needs.
